THE WEATHER.

Rain tonight. Thursday warmer.

F. A. Palmer left for Chicago yesterday.

Claid Birch drove up in a Cadillac from New Smyrna yesterday and is at The Clarendon.

J. D. Carmichael and family have moved into one of the Foote cottages across the railroad on Volusia avenue.

Three full blood Berkshire breeding sows, one registered boar, for sale. Enquire of S. T. Spaulding, Daytona, 1161d 2w.

W. J. Morgan and wife, Miss Mabel Morgan, Donald Morgan, Delaire, O. are guests of The Gables.

Mr. and Mrs. Guild Davis, who have been visiting Mr. Davis' mother, Mrs. C. C. Comstock, 221 Ridgewood will leave for their home at Grand Rapids, Mich. today.

J. W. Reeves, who owns a neat looking cottage on Second avenue, near Beach street, is erecting a four-room cottage with bath on the lot adjoining his home on the south. The cottage, though small, will be a good investment for Mr. Reeves as there are few small cottages in the city which are for rent.

Cups Presented.

A great crowd gathered at the Club House yesterday afternoon to hear the speeches when the various trophies were presented to the winners. Many of these speeches were excellent, probably better efforts than have ever before been heard in Daytona.

Win. Wallace, E. R. Thomas, Arthur McDonald, Paul Sartori, W. C. Temple, S. M. Butler and E. M. Stock were among the speakers, all of whom made excellent speeches. Messrs. Thomas, McDonald and Wallace in their speeches stated that they would return next year.

For Rent.

6 room furnished house, near Ridgewood on Orange avenue. Electric lights, fire place, bath and all modern improvements. Everything new. Price reasonable. Enquire of R. J. Mundy, manager Bond Lumber Co.

Broward's Promise.

A Tallahassee special to the Jacksonville Metropolis says:

It is announced here that Governor Napoleon B. Broward has begun the endeavor to fulfil his ante-election promises regarding the reclaiming of the Everglades of Florida. Governor Broward, in his campaign speeches and in his literature, declared that the Legislature had no right to grant these lands to the railroads. He said that Congress had given these lands to the State, and that the funds derived from any part of them were to be used in draining and reclaiming them.

The Louisville and Nashville Railroad was granted 20,000 acres for every mile of road constructed in West Florida, and the lands claimed by this company form a part of the Everglades.

The trustees of the Internal Improvement Fund, of which Governor Broward is the head, have employed lawyers to fight the matter in the courts. The attorneys secured are ex-Governor William S. Jennings, N. P. & W. J. Bryan and Cockrell & Son, of Jacksonville, and Hon. R. W. Williams, of this city.

The amount of these lands involved reaches over 3,000,000 acres and it is said by some to be valued at about $100,000,000.

The trustees of the Internal Improvement Fund are Governor N. B. Broward, Controller A. C. Cronin, State Treasurer W. V. Knott, Attorney General W. H. Ellis and Commissioner of Agriculture McLin. Seven suits are now pending in the United States Court, and as the amount involved is so very great much interest will be manifested in the contest.

Broward contends that with the State owning these lands, Florida will be in a better financial position than any State in the Union. Ex-Governor Jennings, who has made this a study, it is said, was engaged at the same time the other attorneys were secured.

The Democratic House of Lords.

To think what time was wasted arguing about the house of lords. Tories saying it ought to be preserved because it was clever and Radicals saying it ought to be destroyed because it was stupid, and all the time no one saw that it was right because it was stupid, because the chance mob of ordinary men thrown there by accident of blood were a great democratic protest against the lower house, against the eternal insolence of the aristocracy of talents.—Chesterton's "Napoleon of Notting Hill."

Little Luxuries the Best.

After all, it is a wide question whether the little luxuries enjoyed by the poorer classes and which consume their scant fortunes do not, in the long run, contribute more to the happiness of the human race than do the untold millions of the earth's money kings.—Philadelphia Press.

The Fussy Daughter.

Ethel—Do you spend all of your allowance? Grace—No, I always save a little. The thrift of it pleases father so much that he always gives me something extra at the end of the month.—Detroit Free Press.

Shove Over.

When a man is up against it. He of course is not in a fever. But the fever may be quite near him; He would better shove over.

Way Stations.

"How far is it to town as the crow flies?" "I couldn't tell you, as there are several fields of corn on the way."

Queer Effects of Sunshine.

Every one knows that the heat of the sun will expand iron and steel. Stevenson's tubular bridge over the Mena strait is 400 feet long. The heaviest train passing over it bends it just half an inch, yet on a July day, after the sun has been shining on it for several hours, it is found to be bent an inch and a half below its usual horizontal line. The heat of the sun acts on stone as well as metal, a fact which is proved by the Washington monument. It is 555 feet high, but it will be found to be about two inches higher in the evening than in the morning of a sunny day. A strange effect of sunshine was noted at Plymouth, where to lay the foundations of a sea wall the workmen had to descend in a diving bell. These bells had stupidly been fitted with convex circular glasses at the top. The sea was very calm, and the glasses so concentrated the rays of the sun that the clothes of one of the workmen were set on fire, and that at no less than twenty-five feet below the surface of the water.

The Iconoclasts.

Iconoclasts were image breakers. The controversy respecting images, which had been introduced into churches for popular instruction about A. D. 300, was begun about A. D. 720 and occasioned much disturbance and loss of life in the eastern empire. Leo Isauricus published two edicts for demolishing images in churches in that year and enforced them with great vigor in 735. The controversy was carried on in the church, and the schism was the occasion of the second council of Nice, A. D. 787. The iconoclasts were finally excommunicated at the eighth general council held later at Constantinople, and this controversy led to the separation of the Greek and Latin churches. Many images were destroyed in England and Scotland during the reformation and in the civil war, 1641-48—and on each occasion the destroyers assumed the name of iconoclasts.

Belief in Rat Charms.

It is a curious fact that as late as the middle of the nineteenth century there existed—indeed there may still exist—among the good people of Cavan and Tyrone a belief that rats may be charmed away by rhymes and other magical means. One of my acquaintances was told by an Irishman of a case of "billeting" rats that is, of clearing them out of one place and lodging them in another. No pipe was played. Indeed the method was a mystery, but the rats came flocking out of mill and granary an hour before midnight and moved away in a compact mass to their newly appointed lodgings. It was a brilliant moonlight night, and scores of people besides the narrator followed them as they trooped down the roads and through a sleeping village to their destination.—Sunday Magazine.

His Greatest Sorrow.

Burt—I have no doubt you are sorry about your uncle's death, notwithstanding it brought you into a lot of money. West—Yes; he was doing a good business, you know, and if he had lived a year or two longer he might have left me a good deal more.—Boston Transcript.

Only on the Outside.

"Why, Ethel, you don't mean to tell me you want to marry that baldheaded Professor Wiseman?" "It is true he is bald," said Ethel, "but think how many young men of today are bald on the inside of their heads."

To please, one must make up his mind to be taught many things which he already knows, by people who do not know them.—Chamfort.

A SHREWD FELLOW.

He: "Mr. Jenkins seems to be a wonderfully bright young man."
She: "He is in a certain way. He is careful to select topics of conversation so abstruse that you have to take everything he says for granted."

A Fourth of July Poem.

By Edwin L. Sabin.

Copyright 1904 by E. L. Sabin.

WHO'S this coming down the street,
Crying loud and ever louder?
Little Jamie, one-time sweet,
But at present spoiled by powder!
You will note that while he cries,
Without period or comma,
Definitely on he flies
Making straight as straight for
"mamma!"

WHO'S that howling in the yard—
A calliope unthrottled?
Johnnie, by a cracker scarred!
Johnnie, with complexion mottled!
Now a finger he uplifts,
Now inside his mouth he sticks it,
While for some one's lap he darts it.
"Never mind, dear, mamma 'll fix it."

WHO is beating at the door?
Why these sobs from woe's
abysses?
Who is sitting on the floor
Pacified by lint and kisses?
What the import of the news
By a trembling sister blurted,
While a roar her route pursues:
"Mamma! Mamma! Eddie's hurt!"

"INDEPENDENCE Day"—'tis so
That we style the celebration
'Count of apron strings, you know,
Severed by the infant nation.
But the day forthsets, I wot,
This fact more than any other:
Young America is not
Independent of its mother!
